1. On Easter Day 1953, four six-axled freight cars were observed on the siding of VVB Lova-Wilden Works.¹ They were loaded with carefully covered tank parts which were probably armored chassis. The same cars were still standing at the platforms on 7 April 1952.
2. The VVB Lova plant is developing and expanding quickly. Three additional buildings are being constructed. The concrete pillars and foundations have already been poured, but the scaffolding has not been erected.
3. The VVB Electro-Magnetic Workshop, Dabendorf, Kreis Teltow,² shipped a consignment of twelve 100 watt transmitters in the direction of the USSR on 14 March 1953. Volkspolizei units in the Gotthaus area received the same type of equipment in January.

1. Comment: Possibly VVB Lova fuer Lokomotiv- und Waggonbau, Wildau.
